

Economics is an important factor to consider. It is, however, not the only factor. It may not even be the most important factor when considering the effects of the proposed changes upon a core value of our democracy...that is, an informed democracy.